Vegas, Baby... There’s Nothing Like It

Tina Sopiwnik, DMD
President, NNOHA Board of Directors

What happens in Vegas... stays in the NNOHA Conference app!

Whew. Good thing, too: With the app, it is so easy to find my notes, look up slides, and show my coworkers pictures of Brian Nový’s impression of a saliva protein! I’m so glad I have the app to reference things as I look back at this year’s conference.

One thing I heard over and over again in Las Vegas: “It’s great. There’s nothing like it.” It is fun to hear about why people love and keep returning to the NNOHA Conference. Here are some of my personal reflections about what makes NNOHA Conference so special:

1. Thoughtful plenaries that stir great conversation. It was amazing to be together at this particular time and place and collectively learn about the future of oral health care structure, improving our patient-centered care practice, and bringing health equity out of theory and into your individual practice and life. There was something for each of us in these amazing plenary presentations.

2. Education in a variety of formats. I love hands-on learning, but the conference also provided me with opportunities for one-on-one conversation with poster presenters, the chance to listen to a panel of experts, take part in a Q&A session at the end of a presentation, and share best practices at the membership meeting.

3. Connection with each other. I always feel a deep sense of connection at the NNOHA Conference. This is why so many of us come back year after year. The presenters and attendees understand the joys and hurdles of serving our communities and that we all want to do our absolute best every day at our work. There is a very strong collective consciousness at a NNOHA meeting, and I am once again recharged when I get to spend these short days with you all. The classes, coffee house, exhibit hall, and the membership networking events always make this a conference to remember.

4. Personal and professional growth. We are so thankful for professionals like Dr. Camara Jones who can remind us to be grateful for feedback while we work to identify and name racism in our lives. We have a lot of work to do to improve health equity and oral health access, and I’m honored to do this work with you.

The NNOHA Conference is and always has been great. We hope to continue to look to you to make our conference better and to meet your ever-changing needs as a provider, administrator, or oral health champion. YOU, after all, are the best reason there is nothing like NNOHA Conference! See you next year in Baltimore!

NNOHA again brought the best and the brightest as plenary speakers to its 2019 conference in Las Vegas. Here’s an overview:

Monday
Mr. Stanley Bergman, Chairman and CEO of Henry Schein Inc., and Dr. Marko Vujicic, Chief Economist and Vice President of the Health Policy Institute of the American Dental Association, spoke to “What Must We Do Differently Tomorrow to Improve Oral Health?”

Each speaker conjectured on the value that society places on oral health, while considering the return on investment for both the public and private sector for interventions that improve oral health. The conversation discussed how the current dental care system might need to change and adapt in order to drive sustained improvements in this area. Marko highlighted some of the economic arguments for investing in oral health, while Stan pointed out new opportunities emerging to integrate oral health with mainstream health and wellness interventions.

Tuesday
Dr. Brian Nový, Chief Dental Officer for the Alliance Dental Center, finished his trilogy of addressing and preventing dental disease in a manner beyond the status quo with his session “Nobody Caries.” The expanding landscape of the oral microbiome continues to redefine our understanding of oral health and disease. Highlighting the rapid increase in new therapeutics and bioactive restorations, Brian challenged the audience to reorient itself by practicing preventive rather than reparative dentistry. As he suggests, there can be a satisfying life for both patient and provider without caries!

Wednesday
Dr. Camara Jones, the 2019-2020 Radcliffe Fellow at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard University, discussed “Allegories on Race and Racism: the Cliff of Good Health.” Camara helped the audience understand three levels of oral health intervention, while addressing racism and other systems of structured inequity. She defined three levels of racism with her Gardener’s Tale. This was subject matter that had never before been brought to the attention of NNOHA constituents in such a clear, unabashed manner. Camara encouraged the audience to do further self-examination of what can be done individually and collectively to achieve health equity.

These plenary speakers set a high bar for the conference attendees, which (I have no doubt) they will achieve and surpass in the years ahead.
These pages include a small sampling of all the photos taken in Las Vegas, which capture the essence of the Conference and showcase its various facets. Conference photos courtesy of Kevin Diamond, Las Vegas NV, as well as NNOHA staff.

Opening Reception: The Ultimate Conference Kick-Off
Thought-Provoking Sessions: Learning with and from Peers

A Personal Reflection
“The two courses that I gleaned the most from were “Drug Addiction is no Fiction” and “Preventing Oral Disease in a School Based Setting.” It was really nice to hear and see evidence-based research solidify, once again, that ibuprofen and acetaminophen taken together can be just as efficacious as any narcotic. Plus, the school-based session did not only inspire each of us to be more creative about dentistry and oral health education, it triggered questions and ideas about the process. As we are in our planning phase of school-based oral health care, it has been a defining moment in the planning process for me.”

A Personal Reflection

“This was my third NNOHA Conference. I quickly learned that so many others were dealing with the same daily issues/problems I found myself trying to navigate. Essentially, I learned that so many of us are aiming for the same goals, and I found a village that wants to encourage one another along the way. This year, NNOHA Conference felt a bit like a reunion—seeing familiar faces, discussing old issues, discussing new issues, getting insight on how others have worked out problems we all face. The sessions are always informative and helpful, but it’s the people that really make this conference excellent year after year!”

A Personal Reflection

“I thought the sessions on Infection Control and DUWL were very good. Keeping our teams and patients safe, and protected from bugs, is one of the most important responsibilities we have in our practices. The presenters did an excellent job emphasizing the significance of the material, and also keeping it accessible, relevant, and understandable. The NNOHA Annual Conference continues to be a highlight of my year; reconnecting with friends and colleagues, helpful vendor networking, world class education, and inspiration for the very important work we do in our communities. Lots of fun!”

Oral Health Champion

In recognition of efforts in supporting oral health programs, commitment to patients and providers in the safety-net community, and continuing promotion of oral health as essential to overall good health for everyone

Sherilee Callahan, DA, BA, MPH
Oral Health Director
Mosaic Health
Rochester NY

This nomination came from colleague Veronica Plews. Here is some of what she had to say:

In her role as Director of Oral Health Services, Sherilee has initiated quality assurance programs for dental patients, focusing on quality measures of Caries Risk, Smoking Cessation, and Sealants. She has played an instrumental role in several learning collaboratives within the organization, and currently oversees two dental centers and a school-based Community Dentistry Program that provides services to over 150 schools in the Finger Lakes Region of western New York.

In addition, Sherilee has been an essential force in the guidance, decision-making and streamlining of policies and procedures in compliance with FQHC laws and regulations. She has created and implemented policies and procedures to provide a roadmap for day-to-day operations. She has also created a dental training program that allows organized learning and development for both new and seasoned employees.

Above all, Sherilee is an enthusiastic mentor who is eager to share her knowledge, skills, and expertise. She values ongoing learning and encourages growth to all mentees. She is highly respected by all her colleagues in all levels of the organization and is often looked up to for direction. Mosaic Health’s efficiency, continued growth, and achievements are in large part due to Sherilee’s commitment and dedication to the clinic’s vision and goals.

NNOHA would also like to add its gratitude for Sherilee’s contribution as a member of NNOHA’s Membership Resources and Advocacy Committee.

John McFarland Leadership Award

With sincere appreciation for exemplary leadership in improving the oral health of underserved populations in the community

Dr. Wayne Cottam was nominated for this award by one of his former students, Dr. Scott Howell. In his nomination, Dr. Howell wrote:

When I think of the people in my life who have inspired me to be a better healthcare provider, I think of Dr. Wayne Cottam. At ATSU-ASDOH he developed one of the nation’s most unique programs within a dental school: He worked with community health centers from Alaska to Maine to take on fourth year dental students for a month at a time. These students would get the opportunity to work in communities, learn about new cultures, and grow as dentists and professionals in ways they couldn’t even imagine.

Dr. Cottam has trained over 800 dental students in community health locations. These students have, in turn, treated thousands of underserved individuals and have become dentists in community settings that care for the nation’s most disenfranchised… all because Dr. Cottam inspired them to make a difference.

Never has Dr. Cottam said, “I don’t have time for you.” The response has always been, “How can I help?” He is the epitome of a servant leader. If it weren’t for people like him, people like me wouldn’t even know how to help, how to serve, and how to care for others.

In addition to Dr. Cottam’s outstanding career as an educator, NNOHA owes him a great debt for becoming its second president, taking over from NNOHA’s founder, Dr. John McFarland, for whom this award is named. And though his term as a board member and officer have now been completed, he continues to contribute to NNOHA as a faculty member and advisor to the National Oral Health Learning Institute, which has graduated more than 110 scholars since 2013.

NNOHA President’s Award

In recognition of the inspiration provided to the NNOHA membership through outstanding presentations, visionary research, and personal commitment to the underserved

Stanley Bergman was honored for his support of NNOHA as well as his personal, professional, and humanitarian accomplishments. Under Stan’s leadership, Henry Schein played a pivotal role in helping develop NNOHA during its inception in 1991.

Stan has continued to be a thought leader for inclusive health by recognizing the importance of NNOHA at its founding and supporting its goal of strengthening and expanding the nation’s oral health safety-net system. “On behalf of Team Schein, it is an honor to receive this recognition from NNOHA, a partner that has helped pave the way for access to care for underserved populations across the country,” he said. “NNOHA’s mission to provide oral health care for the most vulnerable individuals in our society aligns with Henry Schein’s belief that all people deserve access to quality health care. We look forward to continuing our relationship with the organization for years to come.”

Henry Schein collaborated with NNOHA on the initial development of the NNOHA website and to create the “How to Build a Community Dental Clinic” guide, a resource for building a new community health center. The company also joined forces with NNOHA to create the Corporate Advisory Committee, a board of dental industry partners committed to helping NNOHA succeed through financial support and in-kind resources. To support Community Health Centers (CHCs) and their unique organizational requirements, Henry Schein also added CHC features into Dentrix, its dental practice management software. The features, built for community and public health centers, allow organizations to enhance patient care and organizational efficiency.

“I am delighted to present Mr. Bergman with the NNOHA President’s Award,” said Dr. Scott Wolpin, outgoing president of the NNOHA Board of Directors. “The generosity from Henry Schein and Mr. Bergman’s visionary thinking has enabled us at NNOHA to contribute to the success of oral health providers in community health centers across the country, and we are so appreciative that Henry Schein has been with us every step of the way.”

Lifetime Achievement Award

In recognition of cumulative professional accomplishments supporting oral health access

Dr. Steven P. Geiermann attended the University of Michigan where he received his DDS in 1983. After serving as a dental director for both Indian Health Services and a Federally Qualified Community health center, he pursued a career with the U.S. Public Health Service. He retired as Captain after assisting both the National Health Service Corps and the Health Resources and Services Administration for 10 years as a regional dental consultant for grantees in the Upper Midwest.

But that simply was not enough; Steven has served as the Senior Manager for Access, Community Oral Health Infrastructure and Capacity within the ADA’s Council on Advocacy since 2008 and filled three consecutive terms on the NNOHA Board of Directors including positions as an officer and member of the executive committee. For the past three years Steven has chaired the planning committee for the NNOHA Annual Conference.

In recognition of his outstanding service in public health dentistry, Steven has received the President’s Award from both the Association of State and Territorial Dental Directors (2019) and the American Association of Public Health Dentistry (2005). In 2007 he not only won NNOHA’s Leadership Award, but also the Meritorious Service Medal, the second highest award bestowed upon USPHS Commissioned Officers, for his efforts in strengthening the dental public health infrastructure.

Dr. Geiermann was nominated by Dr. Mark Doherty, who shared the following about him:

“Each year that I have known Steven, he has opened my eyes and heart to what a true leader, advocate, and believer in community health should be. With Steven, there is no time constraint or limit. Whatever he needs to do, to do it right and to the best of his ability, he does. His communication is exceptional because it is always considerate, sincere, and professional... he has always been willing to take whatever extra steps are necessary, whether it’s an opportunity or a challenge, to further that goal of quality and excellence.

As a trustee of NNOHA, Steven consistently represents NNOHA internally and externally at the highest strategic level. He always suggests or pursues what, in his part, is best for NNOHA, its staff and its members.

Lastly, Steven’s understanding and dedication to patients is unparalleled. If you want to talk to someone who understands the complications and daily challenges faced by individuals and families living at or below the poverty line, talk to Steven Geiermann.”

Special Contribution Award
In recognition of a special contribution to NNOHA and its members

Juris Svarcberg, DMD, MPH
Retired Dentist and NNOHA Founding Member
Ewing NJ

The history video that premiered at this year’s NNOHA Conference, The NNOHA Story: Past Present and Beyond, didn’t just happen. It was the result of the vision of Dr. Juris Svarbergs, a founding member of NNOHA and an emeritus member of the NNOHA Board of Directors, who wanted to capture the events of 1991 that led to the formation of NNOHA.

It wasn’t inevitable that NNOHA would come into being, and it wasn’t certain that it would survive. Today we all know the outcome... but Juris documented the journey from then to now.

For this project, he gathered historical documents, tracked down his fellow founders, found a filmmaker, and convinced the NNOHA board that this would be a good investment. And in summer 2019 he gathered some people in a hotel meeting room and began the process.

First the interviewing, and then the transcribing, and then the editing. Add a little music, throw in some conference photos, and voila! Not only is the story impressive, but the video was completed on time and on budget. And will occupy a permanent place on the NNOHA website where all can see it.
A Different Kind of Winner

NNOHA is pleased to announce this year’s winners of the Henry Schein Global Product Donation Program (GPDP). In partnership with Henry Schein Cares, Inc., GPDP has been offered every year to NNOHA organizational members to support their efforts to increase access to oral health care.

She is passionate about Ravenswood’s mission and has worked to expand the dental program from a basic 10-chair clinic to an impressive multi-clinic operation that serves more than 8,000 patients annually, includes an AEGD residency program, and operates an extremely robust Virtual Dental Home Program that serves preschool children throughout San Mateo County.

Dr. Thakur has served on the board of Institute of Human and Social Development (IHSD) that runs the Head Start Program in San Mateo County since 2013. She led the creation of the Oral Health Strategic Plan in 2015 and is the incoming Chair of the San Mateo Oral Health Coalition.

Committed to serving underserved communities and working with patients who have special health care needs, Dr. Thakur’s clinical efforts are focused on eliminating oral health disparities among low-income and minority populations. Dr Thakur holds adjunct academic appointments at UCSF School of Dentistry and University of the Pacific Arthur A. Dugoni School of Dentistry. She enjoys mentoring medical and dental students, and is a proud graduate of the first cohort of the NOHCLI program.
Letter from the Executive Director

Lessons from Las Vegas
Phillip Thompson, NNOHA Executive Director

Every year at the NNOHA Annual Conference, my own learning continues. Here are my top takeaways from 2019:

1. It takes a village to put on a successful conference. Or at least a really big team. There are so many people to thank for their efforts to ensure the record-breaking 1,035 registrants who came to Caesars Palace for the 2019 NNOHA Annual Conference had the best possible opportunities for professional growth:
   - The Conference Planning Committee, led by chair Dr. Steve Geiermann, who crafted the agenda and recruited knowledgeable speakers.
   - A total of 78 expert speakers who came from every part of the country to impart their experience and insights. Did you know this year’s presenters represented 56 organizations and community health centers?
   - The sponsors and exhibitors whose financial support keeps the conference among the most affordable for safety-net organizations. Special thanks to DentaQuest Partnership for Oral Health Advancement, Henry Schein Inc., American Dental Association, and Aseptico.
   - NNOHA staff who processed registrations, populated the mobile app, created online polls, maintained contact with speakers, ensured CDE information was monitored and distributed, created nametags, deployed signage, collected fees, and paid the bills. And thanks to the staff of On-Par Productions who coordinated refreshments, events, and housing with the hotel, ordered all the awards, and manned the registration booth.

2. We’re not the only village. NNOHA was honored to welcome colleagues from other oral health associations, advocacy groups, primary care associations, corporations, the U.S. Public Health Service, HRSA, and others who share our mission of expanding access to quality oral health care.

3. The torch has been passed to a new generation. At the NNOHA Board of Directors meeting held just prior to the conference, a new slate of officers was elected. This leadership group represents a younger, more diverse NNOHA, with new ideas, new energy, and a passionate commitment to lead the dental profession in defining and delivering high quality oral health care. Read more on page 14.

4. We honor our past. We cannot forget how close the country came 28 years ago to losing oral health services in community health centers. We owe a debt to the generation that created NNOHA. When those nine dentists met in 1991, with no more resources than their own vision, it was not inevitable that NNOHA would become the vibrant organization it is today. It took persistence. I offer a special thank-you to Dr. Juris Svarcbergs, who captured this important history on film. Check out his video yourself: The NNOHA Story: Past, Present, and Beyond.

5. We honor the present. Thank you to everyone who submitted a nomination for one of the NNOHA annual awards. We are grateful for all the stories and successes you shared with us. Keep those nominations coming; there are many deserving people out there. And congratulations to the winners! Read more about them starting on page 9.

6. What you learned in Vegas CANNOT stay in Vegas. Despite our best efforts, the barriers to access to quality oral health care have not gone away. Now is the time to take what you learned back to the clinic:
   - what dentistry must do differently tomorrow
   - how to approach work/life balance
   - the effect of racism on the “cliff of good health”
   - innovative practices
   - quality improvement techniques
   - fundamental clinical issues
   - how to approach critical conversations with patients
   - the latest research on cariology

Use all those lessons, as well as the contact information you collected from your new friends and colleagues. Put that learning to work. Keep connecting with each other. That is what NNOHA is for. That is why you went to the Annual Conference.

And now that you are back in the office, you can do even more: Consider joining a NNOHA committee, put a question (or a response) on the Listserv, register for a webinar, explore our website, submit an abstract for next year’s conference, download the new Quality Manual, post a job, and share the NNOHA News with your staff and your CEO.

And, of course, plan to join us again next year at the Baltimore Marriott Waterfront Hotel, October 25-28, 2020. If I’ve learned anything, it’s that NNOHA’s conference gets bigger and better each year... and you really won’t want to miss out.

See you in Baltimore!
